

WANT TO SPANK UNRULY PUPILS.

Male Principals of City Schools Ask Return to Corporal Punishment for Vicious Children.

WOULD PUNISH TRUANTS, TOO

They Declare that Magisterial Power Over Those Who Play Hooky Should Be Vested in the Various District Superintendents.

The principals of New York schools want to return to corporal punishment for unruly pupils. In a set of resolutions that will be handed to the School Board the Male Principals' Association asks permission to chastise bad boys and have advised that all magisterial powers in cases of truancy be lodged with the district superintendent. If this recommendation be accepted by the School Board the superintendents will have the power to commit children, after a hearing on truancy, with or without the parental consent, and "to fine parents who neglect their duties to their children under the law."

The principals say that the present system of maintaining discipline has proved unsatisfactory in many cases. In their report they say:

"We are in accord with the general spirit of the laws governing punishment of refractory pupils, but we must confess that there are pupils on whom the prevailing method of discipline has not the corrective effect that is intended."

"We feel justified in recommending for these pupils sterner measures. Every child has the right to demand of us that we train him to a wholesome respect for law. Training implies power to enforce obedience. The child's right is our duty, from which we are not absolved by the mere plea of sentiment."

"The unruly children of a class, taking advantage of the limitations of the teacher's powers, waste the time of the other pupils, make class management a difficult task, and, in many cases, conduct themselves toward teachers in a manner that would not be tolerated outside of a public school building."

"We would, therefore, respectfully recommend that any pupil who, upon trial by the proper authorities, is adjudged unamenable to the prevailing method of discipline shall be deemed subject to corporal punishment."

Dr. William H. Maxwell, Superintendent of Schools, does not favor a return to corporal punishment. He said: "I believe the slight estimate in which the teacher is held is due to the fact that for two thousand years he has been known as one who was cruel to children. The teacher of today, who has himself abjured corporal punishment, has to suffer for that two thousand years' record. I sincerely believe that the discipline in the schools to-day is an improvement on that of former years."

Ingham's Marriage Postponed.

OBJECTED TO MANICURE GIRL.

Citizen Rushed Into Mayor's Office Declaring that Picture Displayed in Shop Window Was Not a Proper One.

POLICEMAN SAID "GO WAN!"

Inspection Showed the Picture Complainant Of to Be Unobjectionable, but the Caller's Indignation Seemed Without Bounds.

He was all indignation when he rushed into the Mayor's office to-day. It fairly oozed out of every pore. But he began rationally enough.

"Now, I am not one of those goody-goody kind of reformers or a vice-hunter," he began. "I am just a plain, ordinary, decent citizen, and as such I don't want to be shocked by witnessing indecent pictures in store windows. Across the street is a picture which is really shocking. It is posted up in full view. I asked a policeman to order it taken down and out of sight, but he just laughed at me and said:

"'Ah! go wan, yer only foolin'.' Now, I ain't foolin'. I am in dead earnest. I'll tell you what it is," and the man whispered into Sgt. Kennell's right ear. The sergeant blushed.

"We can't do anything but suggest you see Anthony Comstock," said the sergeant.

"All right; I'll see him right off. I can't stand for any such picture." A reporter hurried out to get a glimpse of the picture before an expected Comstock said:

There was no necessity for a raid or undue indignation. The picture depicted a pretty woman manicure artist trimming the shapely finger nails of a nice-looking young man. That was all.

MET, WOODED, WED, IN 29 MINUTES.

James A. Bennett, of New Jersey, and Miss Fanny Wood Establish a Courtship Record.

The record for a speedy courtship and marriage is held in Summit, N. J., for in one minute less than half an hour James A. Bennett, of Basking Ridge, met, wooed, won and wed Miss Fanny Wood, one of the fairest girls of Summit.

Miss Wood was driving with a friend and stopped at the Hilton Hotel for a luncheon. She was seated in the dining room, her face aglow after a brisk ride through the mountains. Bennett passed the door and was smitten on the spot.

He sought out Mrs. Earl, the wife of the proprietor, and asked an introduction. She consulted Miss Wood, who pronounced when assured that Mr. Bennett was a man of refinement and excellent family.

Within five minutes after the introduction the man confessed that the life of a bachelor was a lonely one, and she admitted that she felt sorry for him. The cue was a good one, and he took advantage of it by asking her to share his joys and sorrows.

Miss Wood's mind moved rapidly, and in a few seconds he had an affirmative answer. A justice of the peace was summoned without delay and the ceremony was performed in the parlor of the hotel.

A merry party of friends of both Mr. Bennett and his bride were soon at the hotel, and champagne flowed until a late hour at night. The couple will live in Basking Ridge when they return from their wedding tour.

"I Coughed Up a PINT OF BLOOD From My Lungs."

"Of course I expected to die, as my lungs were in a frightful state. My frequent hemorrhages, followed by my paroxysms of coughing, made me so weak that I could scarcely walk."

"I lost 27 pounds in three months. My doctors did me no good and finally gave me up, saying there was no chance for my recovery."

"A friend who had been cured at the Koch Lung Cure, at 50 West 22d St., New York, advised me to go there. I commenced treatment Nov. 19, 1902, breathing into my lungs the healing vapors of the Koch Inhalation, and I began to improve at once. My cough disappeared, my appetite returned and I gained rapidly in weight."

"I am now entirely cured, and I am so grateful for my recovery that I will be glad to tell all about my case to any one who will call on or write to me."

Macy's May Undermuslin Sale.

"Crisp as New Money."

The writer mingling in the thick of the throng, in order to overhear and record the comments of disinterested visitors to the May Sale of Muslin Underwear, was struck with the spontaneous metaphor, "Crisp as new money," uttered by an appreciative woman as she surveyed the wide-stretching heaps of garments. She hit it off accurately and epigrammatically. "The prettiest Muslin Underwear—and the best." That's the unanimous verdict—the opinion of discriminating women upon tasteful women's work. The Sale opened with intensity. It will continue with vigor. An overflowing abundance of incomparable values is the irresistible incentive to large and rapid trading.
